

Burger 256 – Late-night menu at Burger 256 is popular. So Chartwells will introduce some of the menu offerings as limited-time-offer (LTO) selections during the daytime. There is a lot of “push” during the

[REDACTED]

The name is corrected from Café de Luce to Caffè Delucci. A special shipment of refrigerated display cases pending further collaborative decision based on the University’s development of the campus master plan. Chartwells wants to be consistent with the master plan. Mr. Nelson explained that project-focused efforts are underway. The caution is to not expend funds for a venue now that may not fit the strategic goals and then have to re-invent the space and/or food service. Therefore, further plans have been tabled pending the outlay of projects according to the master plan. (The Stone Lodge pub idea has also been tabled due to high cost of infrastructure renovations.)

[REDACTED]

Ms. Flippo inquired about meal options for summer. Presently, Chartwells is undecided about whether to offer a summer meal plan; the UNA commitment is pivotal to their decision. Chartwells needs a firm commitment for the number of summer meals that will be required. Dr. Jacques pointed out that we had several athletes in summer school in July and suspects that we are looking at more athletes who will need to dine during the summer. The D1 training is underway and coffee will be provided by Turbo Coffee, which has recently bought out the Lyons Coffee Company. Tea training is next by Piper & Leaf of Huntsville who will supply teas and are trying to develop a special UNA brew, possibly purple. Over the next two weeks, Chartwells will host flash mobs for taste sampling the summer meal plans, then camp meals can be accommodated. An increase in camps would be desirable but then the turnaround time becomes a challenge.

Dr. Jagans pointed out that another restriction is that Mane Market seating is taken to the GUC for summer camps and SOAR. If two different lunch times, such as a time for cheer camps and a time for SOAR, since their feed everyone since we have growth goals for enrollment. For example, parents could eat separately from the students.

Announcements

The next meeting is set for October 10, 2018 at 2:00 PM in GUC 200. The November meeting was re-scheduled to November 14 at 2:00 PM due to the town hall meeting for all staff on the first Wednesday of the month.